- Roles and services that land surveyors can deliver
- What advice and products planners should expect from land surveyors
- The value of land surveying services in the land use planning process
- The importance of determining land status

Presenters:

Scott Jukes, L.S., MISV

Scott Jukes is a Senior Surveyor at Reeds Consulting, a land surveying, civil engineering and broader land development consultancy.

Scott is a Licensed Surveyor and has worked for the Victorian Surveyor-General in senior policy development and audit roles, as well as in the private sector and has experience in land surveying, project management, public policy and legislation development. Scott has a Bachelor of Applied Science in Land Information (RMIT University) and a Graduate Diploma in Surveying Practice (QUT). The profession awarded Scott the prestigious J.G. Gillespie Gold Medal Prize in 2003 for outstanding contributions to surveying and the community.

Scott is the President Elect of the Institution of Surveyors Victoria and a Young Ambassador for surveying's international professional organisation FIG (Fédération Internationale des Géomètres).

Andrew Sherman – Principal – Local Government, Planning and Environment
Russell Kennedy

Andrew is a Law Institute of Victoria Accredited Specialist in Environment, Planning and Local Government Law. Andrew has practised in the areas of local government, planning and environmental law over the last 20 years with special expertise in water law. His skills also extend to major development and infrastructure projects with particular emphasis on the relationship between planning and environmental matters and sustainable development.
